

ASM Washington, D.C. Branch Spring Meeting 2019
Clinical and Public Health Microbiology
Early Career Scientist Meeting
March 22, 2019
American Society for Microbiology (ASM) Bldg.
1752 N St. NW, Washington, DC 20036

Agenda

Start	End	Description
12:00	1:00	Check-In and Lunch (provided)
1:00	1:10	Welcome Dr. Stefano Bertuzzi CEO, American Society for Microbiology
1:15	2:00	Invited Talk: Getting comfortable with chaos: research as a physician-scientist Dr. Barbara I. Kazmierczak Professor, Yale University School of Medicine
2:00	2:20	Neisseria gonorrhoeae infection of the uterus produces a distinct immune response compared to lower genital tract infection in a female mouse model A. Claire Costenoble-Caherty Graduate Student, Uniformed Services University
2:25	2:45	Deep sequencing to track temporal patterns of the Eonycteris spelaea virome Adrian Paskey Graduate Student, Uniformed Services University
2:45	3:00	Coffee and Tea Break
3:00	4:00	Exploring Non-Academic Careers Dr. Katherine Lontok, Public Outreach Manager at ASM Dr. Amy Kullas, Publishing Ethics Coordinator at ASM Dr. Karelyn Cruz, National Program Leader at USDA Moderated by Dr. Shilpa Gadwal, Career Resources Specialist at ASM
4:05	4:25	Bacterial Vibes: Exploring the Possible Influences of Acoustic Vibrations on Biofilms Michelle Ramsahoye Undergraduate Student, Harford Community College
4:30	4:50	Copper Resistance is Important for Virulence of Acinetobacter baumannii Caitlin Williams Graduate Student, Uniformed Services University
4:55	5:00	Concluding remarks Patrick LaBreck Graduate Student, Uniformed Services University

Sponsors:

Quest Diagnostics

bioMérieux

American Society for Microbiology